

"Loss Of Freedom" Called "Greatest Threat To U.S." By Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman

"I am convinced that the greatest threat in America today is the danger of the loss of our freedom of individuality," Lt. Gov. of Pennsylvania Roy E. Furman told delegates of the allied orders of the Grand Army of the Republic at their 78th annual state encampment being held here Sunday through Wednesday.

Furman's address was delivered Sunday night in Christ Chapel, on the College campus, as a part of the campfire program. He told the delegates that "Veterans, and those who are the present-day descendants of veterans, can through their organizations be powerful instruments for the task of preserving our freedoms and keeping this nation strong, as well as preserving the integrity and the security of the entire world."

Noting that "freedom can best be described by those from whom it has been taken," Furman said, "certain events in our commonwealth, in recent weeks have made many of us wonder if, as citizens, we enjoy full political freedom."

"The great power to compel conformity through threats and fear of reprisals—the exerting of pressures to 'force' a man to vote against his conscience, his desires, and his sense of decency surely must be considered a sinister threat to our political freedom."

"Part Of Machine"

"And," he said, "those who resort to such tactics are threatening the very freedoms to which they give lip service and which they know are the very foundations of our democratic system of government."

"The so-called 'company man'—whose innermost thoughts and very existence are dictated by an all-powerful business concern—has his familiar counterpart in the 'rabid union' man, the 'political party' man, and the 'social set' man, all of whom are a part and parcel of a machine, a group or an organization without regard to the qualities of its leadership or their principles. This subservience can ultimately weaken our social structure to the point of endangering our liberties," he said.

"Adhere To Principles"

"I do not intend to indicate that there is not some merit in basic conformity. We must certainly must adhere to principles. But the constant and early threat in each of the situations I have just mentioned is that too often and too soon the usefulness of these individuals has been lost or destroyed."

"Yet, often we have created our own threats to freedom. By admiring bigness we have encouraged the creation of large and inclusive business, monopolistic

Russell Gerald Zumbrum, 18, Hanover, was sent a ten-day notice by Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore on charges of reckless driver and disorderly conduct filed against him Friday evening about 11:45 o'clock by special police Bernard V. Miller, Cumberland Twp.

Zumbrum is charged with stealing a 1958 Chevrolet from the residence of George E. Helwig, Gettysburg R. 1, around 2 o'clock Saturday morning, and wrecking it a few minutes later while driving toward Hanover.

Miller said the car Zumbrum was driving at the time he wrote the information against him was not the stolen car belonging to Helwig, but another car said not belonging to Zumbrum. Miller didn't reveal whose car Zumbrum was driving Friday evening.

Zumbrum was released from jail Saturday afternoon after posting $1,000 bail. He will appear in sentence court August 30, Justice Baschore said.

ALLIED ORDERS OF GAR OPEN 4 DAY SESSIONS

The allied orders of the Grand Army of the Republic opened their four-day state convention here Sunday afternoon with a concert by the Blue and Gray Band of Gettysburg; an address of welcome by Wilbur Plank, Burgess of Gettysburg; introduction of department heads by Arthur W. Warman, chairman of the Gettysburg Encampment Committee, and greetings from Julian Estep, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and William G. Weaver, president of the Travel Council. The afternoon festivities were held in Lincoln Square at the entrance to Hotel Gettysburg.

After welcoming the delegates, Burgess Plank said, "Every convention of this kind, wherever it is held, is a patriotic contribution to American life. The patriotic feeling of every one of us may be the stronger for your assembling here where so many gave their lives for their country—here where Lincoln stated principles that endure."

"Valor And Devotion"

"No one could overestimate your contribution in keeping always before the American people the high sense of duty, the deeds of valor, the devotion to their country that imbued the men who fought and died at Gettysburg."

"Almost a hundred years ago the American Union of States was threatened here, and on the other battlefields of the Civil War, by the armed forces of eleven states that had seceded. Today our very existence as a nation—and that of the entire free world—is threatened by the armed forces and the subversive agents of a foreign government."

"In convention here this week you are commemorating loyalty, and heroism, and sacrifice through which the Union was preserved. By emphasizing these attributes of our national character, your sessions are doubly valuable and important. They remind us of our glorious past. They should make us all realize that America's illimitable future—and indeed our survival—demand in us those qualities that we extol in the men of the GAR," Burgess Plank said.

Other Greetings

Bringing greetings from the Chamber of Commerce, President Estep expressed the hope that "the seeds of this convention may be cultivated for the benefit of our country. We hope you will enjoy yourselves in our community," Estep said.

Dr. Bainton's Address

The following is the complete text of the address, "A Trip to the Moon," by Dr. Roland H. Bainton, of Yale Divinity School, at the Gettysburg College commencement exercises on Memorial Field Sunday afternoon:

I should like to take you on a trip to the moon. Interest in the moon is of course as old as mankind. From time immemorial peasants have planted by the moon. The ancients identified her waxing and waning disk with the goddess Diana, fair and fickle. Her influence might be baneful and one mentally deranged was called a lunatic. Interest in the composition of the moon has a venerable history. Just when the tale arose that the moon is made of green cheese I do not know but it was already hoary in colonial New England. The six-year-old grandchild of one of the divines came to him with the query whether the moon was made of green cheese. He told her to work it out for herself. She came back saying that she had it. "How?" he asked, and she answered, "The Bible says that God made the moon before he made cows. Therefore the moon was not made of green cheese."

The idea of a trip to the moon is not recent and by no means originated with Jules Verne. In fact Majorie Nicolson has a whole book devoted to imaginary "Voyages to the Moon." This earliest extant literature in this genre is the satire of Lucian in the second century of our era. His work had a vogue throughout the Middle Ages. The Renaissance gave a new impetus to the idea. Rabelais played with it and Don Quixote and Sancho Panza had a brush with the moon. But the great upsurge of interest came when Galileo from the summit of Fiesole trained his "optic glass" upon her orb to desecry, as Milton wrote, "new lands, rivers or mountains in her spotted globe." Imagination began to people the moon with

SETTLE SUIT
FOR $4,250

After a hearing in court here this morning, a damage action in which more than $12,000 had been asked was settled amicably for $4,250. The sum is to be paid to Freda M. Dehoff, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Phyllip Dehoff, Littlestown R. 2, and to Mrs. Dehoff, who was one of the plaintiffs in the action.

Herbert J. Sell, 12 W. King St., Littlestown, was defendant.

Sell was named as the driver of a car which struck the Dehoff child as she was going toward a school bus near her home on the morning of December 10, 1956.

Testimony today showed the girl suffered a fracture of the skull and was unconscious in the Warner Hospital for six weeks. Dr. R. W. Gifford described the recovery of the girl, who was in court this morning as "remarkable." There was some testimony about some permanent damage to the child's left eye as a result of the accident but her vision continues to be good.

Papers filed in the case showed the Dehoff family had hospital and medical expenses totaling more than $2,900 as a result of the mishap.

Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, delivered the baccalaureate address. His topic was "What Is Your Life?"

Dr. Fry declared that "intelligence of perspective is one of the most important of virtues" in living. He urged the graduates to build and offered a suggestion comparable to the architect to whom "life is an edifice." He posed the question "What is the goal of your life? Are you ashamed to confess you have no goal?" Progress in life he pointed out requires having a goal but a goal of achievement and not one of pointlessness.

Russia Seeks East German
Recognition With 9 Captive
U.S. Soldiers, Helicopter

BERLIN (AP)—Russia refused today to take responsibility for the nine U.S. Army men taken prisoner by the East German Communists Saturday when their helicopter made a forced landing inside the satellite.

Keeping up its campaign to force Western recognition of the puppet Communist government, the Russian embassy in East Berlin declared that the East German regime has jurisdiction over the American prisoners and their aircraft because the helicopter came down outside the three Allied air corridors to West Berlin.

Russia guarantees free Allied air traffic through these corridors under a 1949 Big Four agreement.

Indicates Wrangle

The Soviet embassy statement indicated the United States and Russia were heading into a big diplomatic wrangle over the nine Americans.

The Russian statement was in response to a newsman's question whether Russia or East Germany had jurisdiction over the Americans.

Earlier the East German government claimed it has the right to say what will be done with the helicopter and those aboard it.

The United States does not recognize the East German Communist regime and had demanded that the Soviets in East Berlin promptly return the eight Army officers, one sergeant and their aircraft.

Ran Out Of Gas

The Western Allies contend that in accordance with the postwar four-power agreements on Germany, all their dealings concerning East Germany, must be with the Soviet Union.

The helicopter belonged to the 3rd Armored Division and had been on a military exercise. U. S. authorities assumed the craft turned east due to a navigational error in a thunderstorm and ran out of gas.

It came down at Zwickau, 30 miles east of the border. The Soviet army headquarters in East Berlin said all nine men were safe and unharmed.

The East German Foreign Ministry announced it had sent the U. S. State Department a note protesting that East German airspace had been violated. The Foreign Ministry followed up today with a declaration that the fact it had sent its protest direct to the State Department showed he East German regime—and not the Soviets—has jurisdiction in the matter.

Refuse Names

A Belgian jet fighter was forced down in East Germany 12 days ago. The Soviets have referred all Belgian queries to the East Germans.

The Americans still refused to announce the names of the nine men in the helicopter, contending that all the next-of-kin had of been notified. The Army did confirm an East German report that one of the passengers was Maj. James Zeller, artillery training officer of the 3rd Armored Division, Zeller's home town was not given.

The East German spokesman refused to say where the men were now or when they might be released.

In Bonn, the U.S. embassy said it had not received any note from the East Germans. When it comes, an embassy official said, "we'll give it right back to them — we don't recognize them."

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Heavy Robbery: On Thursday last, during the religious services at the Congregational Chapel, and while Mr. John Small and family, who resided near, were in attendance at the Chapel, some villain entered his house, and robbed it of gold and silver, notes and bills to the amount of $700. Two suspicious persons were arrested, but nothing was found upon their persons.

Rev. S. Sentman, for seventeen years and a half pastor of the Taneytown, Md., has resigned his charge, to take effect on the 1st of July next; and has accepted a call to the Ev. Luth. Church at Barren Hill, Montgomery County, Pa. He enters on this new field of labor about the first of August next.

The Rev. Thomas W. Kemp, late of our Seminary, sailed from Boston on Wednesday last, in the Niagara, for Europe, with a view to improve his health, which is much impaired.

Miss Amanda E. Hagen has been appointed one of the teachers in the Public Schools in the place of Miss Scanlan.

The Rev. J. H. Murray, for eighteen years pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Petersburg (York Springs), has resigned because of his health.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Memorial Day Notes: Tuesday of last week a delegation of Corporal Skelly Post No. 9, G.A.R. in charge of Post Commander Armory, visited Arendtsville and Bendersville to decorate the graves of the soldiers who are buried there. At the former place they were conducted to the two cemeteries by the school of Miss Carrie Backwelder, in charge of Messrs. Henry Beamer, Peter Taylor and H. P. Mark. After the exercises were concluded they proceeded to Quaker burying ground, near Flora Dale, to remember the soldiers sleeping there.

At Bendersville Miss Sallie Wilson and Mr. Amos Delap had assembled the public school and Sunday school children and the procession proceeded to the beautiful church yard near the town where the Post repeated their ceremonies. There were no formal demonstrations or speech making at either place.

Committee of the Post decorated the graves of the soldiers buried in Buchanan Valley. Notwithstanding the great crowd of people in the National Cemetery, Wilson and his assistants preserved first-class order on the grounds.

It was a subject of remark on Memorial Day that there were so few soldiers in the line of procession. It is a sad fact that the passing years are rapidly decimating the ranks of the survivors of the late war, but does it not seem a shame, with hundreds of ex-soldiers in the town, who were all cordially invited by the Post to unite with them, that so few of them responded. Sometimes it seems that if it were not for the Grand Army of the Republic, Memorial day would soon be a recollection of the past. We hope that in the future every ex-soldier will consider this matter and conclude to unite with his former comrades for one day at least in a service which should be annually perpetuated.

Personal: On Decoration Day we had calls from members of the legislature and other visitors, among them Hon. Benjamin F. Hughes, Senator from the 8th District, Philadelphia. Mr. Hughes was a student in Pennsylvania College in 1869.

We also had a pleasant chat of an hour with Gen. S. W. Crawford, who makes it a point to come to Gettysburg on each returning Decoration day to unite in honoring the brave boys who sealed in death their devotion to the country and to look over the ground over which his own gallant Reserves made their famous, successful charge in the pinch of the second day's fight, Gen. ## Today's Talk

COLLEGE OR NO COLLEGE?

We learn comparatively little in college. Its great function is to get us to think logically and with a purpose. A secondary value to time in college is that we meet minds that are new to us, and they stimulate us to think. Always when in college the student is being challenged. This is good. If college teaches anything worth while it should be that we have two feet — and they were made for us to stand upon, without any canes or crutches.

College teaches character and proves the power and usefulness of many contacts that are very useful in after — college days. In college I learned to value the love of books, and to spread the knowledge. Meeting many favorites in many different homes put me into a fine humor at once, and to be a democratic reader of books is to demonstrate your desire for warmth of friendliness, and keen observation.

College days, to me were very happy, but what I learned outside college walls is what has counted the most, though nothing can be superior to a solid, four-square friend. Something dies within me when one of these early friends is taken out of my everyday life. I treasure the memory of these absentees, nevertheless.

The great college is what we do with ourselves after we leave the scholastic halls. It is there in these halls that we are tested, tried and appraised. Some can take the medicine meted out there and some cannot. After all, it is a matter of character, and the will to live. Where did Lincoln gain his mastery of words and simplicity of thought? Not in college! He got them by getting inside the human heart.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Have Faith. Go Forward!"

Just Folks

SPOILED THE IMPRESSION
I thought he was a clever man
And would have told him so.
He did what I thought few men can.

And I was glad to know
That he'd achieved success at last.
Until he bragged about it,
I thought him wise, but that is past;
I have begun to doubt it.

I watched another gaining fame
And saw him reach the top.
I felt he'd earned an honored name.
Said nothing could him stop.
His judgment I'd have banked upon.
But I've begun to doubt it.
He conquered, but my faith is gone;
I've heard him brag about it.

And then I knew another, who
Had wealth enough to spare.
A helpful sum he gave unto
A woman bowed by care.
"Ah, there's a kindly man," thought I.
But soon I had to doubt it;
For after a week had journeyed by
I heard him brag about it.

well underway his work on the opening scenes of the war, which must prove a valuable contribution to the important events which cluster around the assault and defense of Fort Sumter in April 1861. Gen. Crawford was with Anderson in Sumter when the Rebels opened fire and precipitated hostilities. Personally familiar with much of the unwritten history of that period, and having been carefully gathering authentic materials bearing on it, we may expect an interesting as well as a reliable contribution to the history of the war.

In connection with the golden anniversary. Class President Pat Smith presided.

The YWCA served a large cake with golden icing and the number 50 on the top. The room was decorated with golden flowers in gold containers. One of the highlights of the evening was each member telling something about himself. The class officers are Pat Smith, Norristown, president; vice president, Reda Michael, Scranton; secretary, treasurer and class agent, Mrs. John D. Zinn, Gettysburg.

One of the after dinner responses reunion was the reading of verses by the late Professor John A. Himes and dated June, 1900. Their appropriate title would be "At Gettysburg," and reads as follows:

No common soil receives our feet,
O comrades, worn and gray,
Glory has not a nobler seat
Than where we rove today.
Here freedom of a finer strain
Triumphed for all the land
And saw her empire's whole domain
Assured to her command.

No common storm was that which broke
Across the gnarled wood
Distorting many a graceful oak
That sturdily stood;
For iron hail that tempest sent
With lightning's fierce and dread,
Its sulphurous clouds their fury spent
In ghastly rain of red.

No common fragrance here distills
From roses dewy wet,
A rarer perfume subtly fills
The purple violet;
For memory breathes a sweeter scent
Through all the haunted air
And ghostly essences are blent
With Nature's everywhere.

1913

Due to the illness of class president Dr. Robert B. Fortenbaugh, head of the History Department of Gettysburg College, Frank A. Kister, New York, presided over the annual reunion dinner of the class of 1913 held in the college dining hall Saturday evening.

DODGERS TAKE FIFTH IN ROW OVER BRAVES

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
Does anybody still think the Dodgers made a mistake moving to Los Angeles?

Walter O'Malley is so busy these days carting money to the bank that he doesn't even have time to stop and count it. This was the week O'Malley hit the jackpot.

He has seen victory in the Chavez Ravine referendum, and a refreshing surge by his Dodger ball club. By beating Milwaukee Sunday 12-4, they made it five in a row over the Braves this year.

Set NL Record
The three-game series with the Braves drew 111,326, a National League record. In 27 home dates, the Dodgers have pulled 819,151 into the Coliseum. This is 157,379 ahead of last year's record pace at Milwaukee when the Braves played before 2,215,404 at home.

By beating Milwaukee, the Dodgers helped the San Francisco Giants stay in first place, despite San Francisco's 6-3 defeat by Cincinnati.

Los Angeles failed to climb out of the cellar, however, when Philadelphia finally edged St. Louis 6-4 in 14 innings after dropping the opener 6-5 in 10 innings. Harry Anderson's third homer of the day with a man on in the 14th saved the Phils from the basement.

Cubs Blank Pirates
Moe Drabowski of Chicago pitched a one-hit shutout against Pittsburgh, winning 4-0 with the help of homers by Ernie Banks and Walt Moryn. The only hit was Ted Kuszewski's single.

In the American League Cleveland knocked off the New York Yankees 14-1 and 5-4 with Rocky Colavito on a rampage. Boston took a pair from Chicago 6-5 in 10 innings and 4-1. Baltimore handed Kansas City its first shutout of the year 4-0, but the A's came back to take the second 2-1. Washington beat Detroit 4-3.

Johnny Podres gave up 11 hits to the Braves before 57,122 at Los Angeles but it didn't matter. The Dodgers clubbed loser Gene Conley and three successors for 19.

Birdie Tebbetts did some fancy master-minding at San Francisco, where his Cincinnati Redlegs finally pulled one out with three in the ninth.

Good Day For Anderson
With the score tied at 3-3, and Steve Bilko on two strikes on him, Tebbetts sent up Smokey Burgess as a pinch hitter. Mary Grissom hit Smokey with a pitched ball, forcing in the tiebreaking run as Tebbetts charged he deliberately threw at his man. Don Hoak's single added the extra two. Brooks Lawrence went the distance for his third victory.

Anderson hit a single, double and two homers in the first game for the Phils but St. Louis won on Del Ennis' sacrifice fly after three walks in the 10th. Anderson took matters in his own hands in the second with his two-run blast in the 14th after the Phils pulled even with two in the eighth and two in the ninth.

Banks hit his 17th homer and Moryn his 12th off loser Ronnie Kline while Drabowski was doing a job on the Pirates. In addition to Kline's single, three others reached base, one walked and two made it on errors.

Following the signing of the candidates, workouts will be held and a four-team league formed.

2-RUN HOMER BY ANDERSON IN 14TH WINS

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Harry Anderson's two-run homer in the 14th inning Sunday gave the Philadelphia Phillies a split with the St. Louis Cardinals in the longest doubleheader in major league history.

The Cards won the first game 6-5 in 10 innings despite two home runs by Anderson. The Phils took the nightcap 6-4.

Anderson drove in three runs in each game as the clubs battled seven hours and 24 minutes, seven minutes longer than the previous record set by Washington and New York on Aug. 13, 1952.

Lopata Kaye
Anderson got his first RBI in the ninth inning of the nightcap on a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded. That tied the game at 4-4 and set the stage for his homer. Dick Farrell, the winner, pitched six innings in relief and allowed two hits. Lindy McDaniel was the loser.

The Cards scored the winning run in the first game on three walks, and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Del Ennis.

Wally Post homered off Cards' starter Larry Jackson. Robin Robert, the Phils' starter, gave up homers to Joe Cunningham and Ken Boyer. Jack Meyer was the loser and Billy Muffett the winner.

In the third inning, catcher Stan Lopata was knocked unconscious when he was hit on the head by a Jackson pitch. Lopata suffered a concussion and was held for observation at a St. Louis hospital.

ARCHIE MOORE TRYING AGAIN TONIGHT IN CAL.

By MURRAY ROSE
The Associated Press
Ole Archie Moore makes another try for boxing's all-time knock-out record at Sacramento, Calif., tonight.

The 41-year old light heavyweight champion meets heavy-weight Howard King of Reno, Nev., in a non-title 10 rounder. This is the fourth time Archie has been matched against King. In the three previous meetings Moore had to settle for victories by decision. The last time they fought was at San Diego, May 17. Moore is tied with the late Young Stribling, a heavyweight contender of the twenties and early thirties, in knockouts. Each has 126 kayos to his credit.

Welters Go Tonight
Two young New York welterweights, Tony DeCola and Peter Schmidt, collide in the television (DuMont) 10-round feature at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

Wednesday at Washington's Shoreham Hotel Terrace, middleweight contender Joey Giardello, Philadelphia, meets Franz Szuizina, Germany (TV, ABC).

Friday at New York's Madison Square Garden, heavyweights Harold Carter, Linden, N. J., and Willi Besmanoff, Germany, fight (radio, TV, NBC).

Gettysburg College Graduates Class Of 1958 Here Sunday Afternoon

Tribute To C. Paul Cessna

A tribute was paid to C. Paul Cessna, for twenty years service as secretary of the College Alumni Association, at the annual alumni dinner in the college dining hall Friday evening. The manuscript was written by Dr. Francis Mason and Mrs. Kressman Taylor of the English Department. It was read by Prof. Joseph K. Wolfinger, also of the English Department. The tribute follows in full:

It has been said that an institution is the lengthened shadow of one man, and since 1937 the Gettysburg Alumni Association has been, in a very special sense, the lengthened shadow of the man who served it as secretary for twenty years. On this very special occasion we can probably do no better for him and for ourselves than to review briefly some of his labors and achievements, some of the vital and creative images which this versatile shadow-caster has thrown on the intellectual and social life of the college and its graduates.

He has served the lives of our alumni so well because he has known and loved the college so well — as teacher, adviser, organizer, editor, executive, public speaker, efficient financier, and ambassador of good will.

His devotion to Gettysburg on campus has extended itself with full dedication into the lives of the larger Gettysburg of her absent sons and daughters. The shadow of his influence has grown, and the spiritual stature of many a Gettysburgian has grown with it and because of it.

Paul Cessna began his service to Gettysburg College as an instructor in physics in 1915. After an interval of service in the USA Hospital Corps and Field Artillery, he returned to Gettysburg as assistant professor. From 1919 to 1921 he taught physics in the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, and in 1921 and 1922 was associated with the Citizens Trust Company of Gettysburg. Returning to the college faculty in 1922, he taught mathematics until 1937, when he became alumni secretary. He is now assistant to the president on alumni relations, and historian of Gettysburg College.

His brotherly activities have always encompassed more than the obvious duties of his office. He has served constructively on many college committees, especially in the formulation of financial plans. He has taught a Sunday School class named in his honor. As district governor of Lions International, he has roared with contagion and authority. As college photographer he has recorded and publicized many of our most interesting campus events.

He has attended numerous College Nights, at which high-school seniors were groping toward their academic destinies. And he has been present at most of the meetings of your Alumni Clubs, which have multiplied mightily under his inspiration.

For a time Paul did all the publicity work of the college. Together with his devoted secretary Rosea Armor he did all the work of editing the Alumni Bulletin. He developed the Loyalty Fund, and inspired its use for competitive scholarships. He, with Mrs. Cessna, managed the College Bookstore and cleared it of a $10,000 debt. When, in the early 40's the Air Force captured the college, he foraged for essential supplies (then very hard to find) and to his less practical colleagues he seemed to materialize them out of the empty air. Under emergency sanctions from the government, he farmed out cattle, brought them to the college table, and fed our impatient young alumni in the academic wilderness. If ever a man earned it, he is entitled to the as yet undocumented degree of D.C.L. — Doctor of Collegiate Logistics. And we hereupon recommend that the president, by his authority and that of the Board of Trustees, confer upon him that well-earned degree.

"Personal History"

Let us recall a few of the facts in the history of the Alumni Association, the institution with which Paul's personal history has been so vitally united. The association was organized in 1930 and was immediately confronted with the problems of national depression, especially the obvious difficulty in raising funds. Nevertheless it grew and prospered. In 1937, when Paul took office, there were 4,895 living alumni of the college, and only 14 alumni clubs. By 1943 the number of these clubs has increased to 22, — today they number 31.

The rapid growth in the number of his alumni family may be indicated by some more recent figures. In 1947 the graduating class numbered 172; in 1948 with the return of men who had been in service, the number increased to 276. Today 3,498 alumni are on the mailing list of the association.

The loyalty fund, developed under his leadership, began in 1933 with total contributions of $3,566. Although the fund has had its ups and downs, it is gratifying to know that in 1957, gifts reached a peak of over $82,000. Its resources have been applied, through intelligent selection, to the vital immediate needs of the college. For example, in 1940 funds were allotted to the Alumni Competitive Scholarships, two scholarships of $700 a year for four years. In 1944 the fund was used for 13 two hundred dollar scholarships, and in 1948 it was united with the alumni loan fund. The use of the loyalty fund has been constructively intelligent as its development has been energetic. Alumni publications also, though in a different way, have been Paul's creations and among his major concerns. The Alumni Directory, published in 1956, was created and issued, under a supervisory committee, by his efforts and those of his small but valiant office force. The Alumni Bulletin until recent year was edited, seen through the press, and even addressed for the mails by the double-handed energy of Paul and his invaluable secretary.

Even in the midst of these mechanical labors, he found the energy and inspiration to improve the content of the bulletin and enlarge its scope. He even had the superlative wisdom to include in it articles by members of our illustrious faculty, in order to keep our alumni acquainted with the academy life of Alma Mater. He supplemented its usefulness by including with one issue copies of the constitution of the association. The bulletin became his official calling card and he followed it up by innumerable visits to Alumni Clubs. Every issue of his Bulletin has received appreciative response from our alumni.

Paul edited for the 1953-54 Loyalty Fund campaign the first Loyalty Fund brochure, a 20-page booklet which provided a complete history of the drive, with tabulations of donations and names of donors. Literally thousands of booklets and mailing pieces have issued from his nimble editorial pencil. Anyone who has followed the promotional literature of our college for the last 20 years has had a course worth several credit hours in the creative writings of a man who is far from the least among Gettysburg authors. (I am authorized to state that the English Department, subject to the approval of the Academic Policy Committee, here and now recommends the recognition of this course.)

Among all these exacting activities, Paul moved like a vitalizing spirit. Not only did he make color movies of at least one football game each year, with which the alumni were always delighted, but he held up Dr. Hanson for the price of a Leica camera and went into the exacting art of making color photographs. "A color photograph must be perfect, or it's no good," he says. And his was good. For Commencement Homecomings, such as the one of 1954, which was attended by more than a thousand alumni, programs and all the other necessary and intricate preparations have been the work of the alumni office. Under his inspiration, the church service for alumni in College Chapel (now a regular Homecoming event) was first held in 1955.

And throughout these years his contagious sincerity and tact as a public speaker have held and moved uncounted audiences — audiences as various as meetings of the Woman's League, gatherings of secondary school principals, groups of class agents, and the outpourings of restless juveniles who meet on College Nights.

On the face of his record it is evident that this association has never done itself a greater honor when in 1944 it cited Paul Cessna for Meritorious Service.

It has been said that some people are courteous in their promises of cooperation, but rarely cooperate; and that others cooperate, but in a most ungracious spirit. But only within the last few days, a friend and alumnus of the college was heard to remark that in his mind the peculiar distinction of Paul Cessna lay in the fact that he always cooperated, and that he always did it with princely graciousness and courtesy. These qualities may serve, as well as many another, to merit mention, as symbols of his creative brotherliness and humanity.

"That Men May Live Together"

The following is the complete text of the address "That Men May Live Together" by Major General George R. Acheson, commander of the Mid-dietown Air Materiel Area, at the commissioning exercises of the Army and Air Force ROTC at Gettysburg College in Christ Chapel Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

Experience has permanent value only as we learn from it or can transmit it to others. The transmission or experience to a new generation is presumably the reason for graduation speakers. I have asked myself many times since General Paul kindly invited me to Gettysburg College what a man who has spent most of his life in the Air Force could have to say to the ROTC Class of 1958.

You might well be interested in the whole new world of electronic data processing and automation—What can be done with these new machines today, and what they portend for the years of your active business and professional careers. The Air Force is a major user of these big, new computers and processing systems. The experience we are accumulating with them may well broaden and enrich your lives in the future.

Looking To Careers

Many of you are looking forward to business careers. You are aware of the increasing emphasis upon sound business management. We manage a business that concerns itself with over a million three hundred thousand items and is conducted world-wide in a dozen different tongues. What we have learned in the process could also be of importance to you.

You would probably find our work in nutrition, high-altitude and high-energy feeding, and the special design of clothing a promising subject. How can we best prepare a flier encased like a man from Mars in a partial pressure suit. He must, of course, be able to eat it through a straw!

These are only a few Air Force experiences and problems which might prove applicable to your interests and your future plans. Yet common to all of them, and overshadowing each of these activities in its importance, is the basic problem of people, of human relationships.

"Human Relationships"

The miracles of electronics, the management of great inventories, research into human needs and capabilities, are all accomplished through people — for people. The human factor is the great common denominator of all the plans and aspirations which your class represents.

I think what I would like most of all to pass on to you today is something of my own conviction of the transcendent importance of human relationships.

We live in a great age of discovery which I sincerely believe will one day take its place in the history books as a second renaissance. Men's minds and hearts are astir with a new hunger to explore and shape their environment. In science, arts, industry, medicine, agriculture, almost every field of human endeavor, we are glimpsing new horizons for the betterment of man's existence.

This is not a serene process. The powerful forces at work generate turbulence and insecurity. Our knowledge somehow outstrips our wisdom. We look around us at a world poised between self-destruction and a golden age, and realize that we have improved almost everything but man himself, and his ability to live in understanding and peace with his fellows.

This failure is magnified by the fact that there are so many more of us around these days. Authorities differ on the exact rate of population increase in recent years. But they agree in general that somewhere between 3 and 10 per cent of all the people who have ever lived are alive today. Each in his way is seeking his place in the sun, his share as an individual in the brave, new world just around the corner. It is obvious that we must learn to live together in understanding and respect — or we shall rub each other into extinction. As Dean Sinnott of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University has said, "Man, not matter, is the chief problem of the world today."

This is a problem that will be always with you in the years to come.

"Determine Your Success"

It will determine your success in your chosen careers, the happiness and fulfillment of your family lives, the kind of a world that you and your whole generation leave to those who follow.

What are good human relations? What standards can you as individuals set yourselves as a new goal for man's humanity to man? There has been a tendency in recent years to put much emphasis on "personnel management." The term has certain irritating overtones. It smacks of contrivance, rather than cooperation — of a set of techniques rather than fundamental understandings. It implies that people are tools to be put to our uses, rather than individuals each with a dignity and purpose of his own. If we are to make real progress in improving human relationships we must focus our thoughts on people, not en masse, but as individual humans.

On the surface the relationships between these individuals would appear to be governed by three principles, force, opportunism and law. At the lowest level is coercion, raw force, exerted bluntly or subtly by one man to control another. Such force is not always physical. Within our lifetimes we have had vivid demonstrations of mental and social coercion adroitly used by both Nazis and Communists.

Expediency or opportunism also often determines human relations. Where there is no clear superiority of power, men may meet each other on a basis of "catch as catch can." Each does what he considers the "smart" thing for his own immediate interests, without regard to any long-range association or internal consistency.

"Disguised Wolfpack"

A society based solely upon these two primitive principles of human relations would scarcely be the civilization we seek. It would not be a society at all, but a thinly disguised wolfpack, lacking the basic premise of any true society — mutuality. The pressures of individual power and self-interest would destroy all but the bare survival value of the group.

Relationships based on law are of a higher order. They presuppose a foundation of objective justice, an ideal of good. But even they are not adequate for our day. Our modern society has somehow lost much of its awe and respect for the ideal of law. We lose it perhaps when we ourselves exercise our democratic powers to make laws too lightly. As the body of our laws becomes more and more complex it is difficult for us to distinguish between the great fundamental laws and the passing expedient. Much law derived from represents the least common denominator. It rarely embodies the aspirations and hopes that move men positively. Law, being essentially negative in character, can police, but seldom inspire men in their relations with one another.

"Look Beyond Coercion"

If we are to find sound basis upon which man may live with man we must look beyond coercion and opportunism with their brute motivations and short term ends. We must search for a concept more dynamic and creative than that of law. Our goal is a foundation for human relations motivated by the best of which man is capable, coherent and far-sighted, evocative of the strength and mutual support inherent in the ideal of the group.

What principles could give us such a concept? I think if we could learn and live by three words and qualities of the mind and heart we could begin to realize the full potential of belonging to the human family.

The first of these is understanding. Ignorance is the cause of most of man's misconceptions about himself and his brothers. Ignorance is the prime breeder of distrust, fear, hatred. As the dark frightens a child, so the unknown, the unexperienced, the different, tends to disturb and throw us back upon old, unreasoning instincts.

"Increase Understanding"

The primary function of education is to increase the student's understanding. You are fortunate as graduates of a liberal arts college. The liberal arts curriculum is to my mind one of the broadest and best preparations for constructive human relations throughout a lifetime. In its serene scanning of the total record of man, his history, his arts and sciences, what he has done, said and believed through the ages, it offers the truest basis for real understanding of the greatest number of our fellow beings. Experience will supplement that understanding for the man or woman who is truly aware, continuously observing and learning from the life about him, expanding his understanding. It was Socrates who said, "The unexamined life is not worth living." Any of us who continue to examine life with open eyes and heart will grow in our understanding of people.

"Defenders Of Enemy"

I have seen unforgettable proof of this in my own work in the dozen years since the end of World War II. Air Force personnel have, of course, been stationed all over the world—in many cases among populations which were their bitterest enemies during the war. So often they come back from such tours of duty as defenders and interpreters of the enemy that was. They have seen their children, their homes, begun to understand the forces and factors that pattern their behavior. "They are wonderful people," they will say, with a kind of surprise, because understanding has always an element of discovery in it.

If each of us could consistently make the effort to understand the other man we would be a long step toward loving our neighbors as ourselves.

The second guiding principle of our human relations should be, I think, compassion. It is possible to have a rational grasp of why a man is as he is — and still think of him and behave toward him without real humanity. To dissect his motives as coldly and analytically as we would a laboratory specimen is little contribution to human relations. Compassion is the quality of humility in kinship with others. It is the insight that reminds us when we look at another, "There but for the grace of God go I." It is the wellspring of kindness, because no one of us can reject totally the human being in whom he sees reflected his own faults and fears and hurts. Someone has said that "civilization is just a slow process of learning to be kind." Compassion ment, was presented by President Stevens and spoke briefly.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president emeritus of the college, spoke briefly.

The class parade, a colorful affair, started on the north side of Old Dorm and moved across the campus to the dining hall. Leading the procession was George Z. Best of the class of 1893, oldest alumnus in the parade and the only member of his class in attendance. Next to Dr. Aberly he was the oldest living alumnus present.

All reunion classes were recognized and, following a count of members in attendance, the class of 1903 won the attendance award for having the highest percentage of its members present, four out of eight.

In recognition of its 25th anniversary the class of 1933 through its spokesman, Dr. Raymond Sheely, announced a flagstone walk at the SCA building as its gift to the college. Another gift from the graduating class of 1953 was announced by its president, Roy D. Miller, a water drinking fountain to be placed on the campus.

Loyalty Fund Chairman LaVague H. Brenneman announced that as of Saturday the total number of contributors had reached 1943 and the amount donated as $74,736.69.

Meritorious Awards

Henry T. Bream, athletic director, and Ralph W. Hoch, of Philadelphia, received Alumni Meritorious Awards. Presentation of these medals was made by Thomas E. Weaver, of Catasauqua, awards committee chairman, and member of the class of 1925 which established the award in 1935.

Bream has been at Gettysburg since 1926. Following his graduation in 1924 he coached for two years at Phoenixville High School and then returned to his alma mater. As head football coach from 1926 to 1951 Bream had a record of 104 victories, 69 losses and 12 ties. He also had a brilliant record as head basketball coach, which position he relinquished along with the baseball coaching job last year to devote full time to his athletic director duties. Bream coached baseball for seven years following the death of Ira Plank and during this time his teams were always contenders for title honors among Middle Atlantic and Eastern colleges.

Structural Engineer

Bream has been athletic director since 1954 when he succeeded C. E. Bilheimer who retired. Hoch, who was graduated from Gettysburg in 1916, is a structural engineer with the Atlantic Refining Company, Philadelphia. Active in identified with college and alumni activities for many years he has served as president of the Philadelphia Gettysburg Alumni Club and the Faithful Fifty, social group in Philadelphia. He also served as Alumni Association president for three years and is a member of the Alumni Executive Council.

Hoch is the father of Bruce G. Hoch, class of 1943, now a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Navy. He holds membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers and National Society of Professional Engineers.

"The small businessman, the unaffiliated laborer, the individual farmer and the independent voter — all must contend against our subtle reliance on these kinds of bigness.

"Herein lies a challenge to those who love liberty. Here is the opportunity for action for those to whom principles are most precious than expediency."

Chester S. Shriver, past department commander, called the campfire meeting to order and served as master of ceremonies, introducing Lt. Gov. Furman. The advance and massing of colors by military and veteran organizations of Gettysburg and Adams County was under the command of Maj. O. G. MacPherson. Organizations represented were: American Legion Posts of Gettysburg, Littlestown and Biglerville; V.F.W. units of Gettysburg and Littlestown; Catholic War Veterans, National Guard, and Camp 15 of the S.U.V.

Leading the assembly in the singing of the National Anthem and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" was Paul Grove of the Gettysburg High School faculty. He also sang the recent popular song "He."

wondrous creatures of such high intelligence that they could detect depravity in children at birth and would ship the undesirables to earth.

"Depravity Of Man"

This explains, wrote an Englishman, the depravity of men and especially of those in North America. Some one thought of reversing the process and of sending Britain's undesirables to the moon moon. But another proposed that if the moon were peopled with so lofty a race she should be annexed to the British Empire.

In the meantime knowledge to the moon increased and the picture of her possible inhabitants was vastly changed. The moon by night was found to be colder than the arctic and by day vastly more torrid than the tropics. Hence, whatever inhabitants there might be would have to be markedly different from men and might indeed be considered monsters. Milton in "Paradise Lost" drew his picture of the third hell from the literature of voyages to the moon. "In confused march forlorn," Satan's "adventurous bands with shuddering horror pale, viewed their lamentable lot . . ."

Through many a dark and dreary vale
They passed, and many a region
dolorous,
O'er many a frozen, many a fiery
Aip,
Rocks, caves, lakes, fens, bogs,
dens, and shades of death—
A universe of death which God by curse

Created evil, for evil only good;
Where all life dies, death lives,
and Nature breeds,
Perverse, all monstrous, all prodigious
things,
Abominable, inutterable, and worse
Than fables yet have feigned or fear conceived. 1.615-27.

Interests Shifts

Nevertheless this lugubrious picture did not quench all ardor for the moon. Interest shifted from the character of the moon and her inhabitants to the technical problem of getting there. One proposal was a carriage borne aloft by a flock of geese. Another suggestion envisaged a balloon carrying a sheep, a cock and a duck. These were the precursors of Sputnik's little dog. Finally Jules Verne planned a rocket.

Throughout all of this literature of trips to the moon from antiquity to our own day has run a thread of guilt lest man should overreach himself and trespass on the domain of God. This overweening pride the Greeks called "hybris." A sense of guilt is already to be found in the tale of Daedalus and Icarus. You recall that Daedalus fashioned wings and fastened them with wax to himself and to his son. Both took to the air. Daedalus successfully completed the flight, but Icarus flew too near to the sun. The wax melted. He fell and was drowned in the Aegean. The offense here lay not in flying, since Daedalus was not punished, but in flying too high. In venturing into outer space. This was "hybris." The theme of guilt has been persistent. Some English Calvinists argued that if God had meant men to fly He would have equipped them with wings, to which a Catholic replied that He had not equipped men with fins. Yet they had learned to swim. Then why not to fly? Doubt persists. In the midst of the Sputnik furore I was talking with a Jewish friend who reasoned that God had assigned to man this planet. With this he should be content and not tempt divine wrath by aspiring to another.

"Devise Technology"

Guilt of this order does not plague most of us. We believe that God has equipped man with intelligence and left it to him to devise technology. To surmount the obstacles of our environment is a noble endeavor. We do not take seriously the myth of man cast out of the garden for the offense of having eaten of the fruit of the tree of knowledge. But in new forms guilt recurs and we ask ourselves whether we should spend billions to reach the moon before eliminating some of the crying ills on earth. Might we not better clean up leprosy in India or sleeping sickness in Africa before embarking on so costly an adventure? This poem recently appeared in the Christian Century:

Your rice-bowl is empty, little brother,
Your hands are blue from the cold.
Your face is a map of terror and pain,
Old as mankind is old.
Men launch their miracles, little brother,
They send their rockets up,

But should it not be their first concern
To fill your empty cup?

Men try to reach the moon, little brother,
To lasso outer space.
But would they not come closer to God
If they wiped the pain from your face?

"Indefinite Moratorium"

The answer of course will be that if we shut down scientific research till all our social problems are solved we shall have an indefinite moratorium and that will not be ultimately wise even for the correction of our social ills with which science does help. Nor should a project be directed at their immediate alleviation since some of the most beneficial contributions of science to social welfare are indirect and unforeseen. All true enough! Yet there is a principle of balance. The acquisition of knowledge, the dissemination of knowledge and the application of knowledge must be related in terms of sound proportion. We do have a responsibility to make available to undernourished and diseased populations the knowledge which we already possess before spending billions on the remote possibility that leaving earth will improve the earth.

There is a further consideration which may well introduce a note of misgiving with regard to the conquest of outer space and that is the degree to which the whole enterprise is enveloped in an atmosphere of international rivalry. To be sure much of our previous scientific advance has been enveloped in an atmosphere of personal rivalry. Frequently competing scientists have made the same discovery coincidentally and then has ensued an unseemly contest as to which should have enjoyed the glory of priority. The pettiness of men can contribute to the magnitude of science. But it is unseemly and if the competitors be nations rather than men the spectacle is even more unseemly.

What is more disturbing is that the rivalry is not dissociated from the struggle of these nations for power. We are soothed by the assurance that the race for space is not a phase of the cold war, that an attack upon the earth could not be launched from the moon, nor even from outer space. Nevertheless two points of connection cannot be denied. One is that an earth satellite might be used for observation and the second is that the launching apparatus powerful enough to project a space ship can be used also to fire a missile to the opposite side of the globe. This is primarily what frightened us with regard to Sputnik.

Already you will see that I have turned from the moon to the earth. For us earth dwellers the use of our new found powers to reach the moon is vastly less significant than their possible use to destroy ourselves. What a spectacle is man aspiring to reach an uninhabited satellite at the very moment when he may be on the verge of rendering his own world uninhabitable. If we do not it may be only because we are afraid of each other. We are told that our present peace is conserved only by maintaining the balance balanced. Such is the course of those who call themselves realists.

"Balance Of Power"

Let them then be realistic enough to realize what all this involves. The balance of terror is not static. Each side is seeking to upset the balance in its own favor. There is constant cycle of offense, defense and obsolescence. When the atomic submarine succeeded in of honor. They wore jewelry of party Nile. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow pompons and white carnations.

Others In Party

Donald Boyer, East Berlin R. 1, brother of the groom, served as best man. The ushers were Charles Chronister and Wayne Mummert, both of East Berlin, and Laverne Emig, Abbottstown.

William Inskip, Hampton, brother of the bride, was acolyte. Miss Victoria Chronister, Hampton, was flower girl and wore a yellow organza dress with white picture hat and carried a basket of assorted flowers.

The bride's mother was attired in a street-length gown of blue silk with white accessories. She wore a pink rosebud corsage.

Off To Niagara

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Hampton Fire Hall after which the couple left on a wedding trip of one week to Canada and the Niagara Falls. For her going away outfit the bride wore a yellow dress with black accessories. She wore a white orchid. Upon their return the couple will reside in East Berlin.

cruising beneath the seas, eluding all of the detection devices of the American Navy and in surfacing for twenty minutes in Boston harbor from which position a nuclear bomb could have been discharged two hundred miles inland, the cry went up that now we must invent a way to bag the atomic submarine because the assumption is that what we have the enemy soon will have also. Our weapon of defense will be copied and then our weapon will be out of date and we shall be compelled to invent another.

At the present moment we are considering the possibilities of defense against nuclear attack. Complete interception is regarded as impossible. The universal evacuation of cities is not feasible. All we can do is to go underground. Life some time ago offered designs for prefabricated plastic dugouts to be buried in backyards with two exits, one to the cellar and one to the surface, in accord with the ingenious plan devised perhaps a million years ago by rabbits. The denizens of these dugouts will voice the prayer:

God of the rabbit and the mole,
We thank Thee for our plastic hole,
Where refugees from cosmic rays
We spend congested holidays.
When blooms the crocus, buoyed with hope

We view it through a periscope.

And if we succeed in obtaining subterranean security then the enemy may shift to bacteriological warfare and we shall emerge into the hypodermic stage of civilization. And should a mode of defense against this attack be invented then the enemy might revert to poison gas. In such a struggle for survival the amenities of life will scarcely survive.

What is much more disconcerting is what has already happened to the moralities. We are not to forget that the balance of terror rests on the readiness to inflict terror. The assumption is that if the enemy were by a surprise attack to destroy a hundred million Americans in a night, we should nevertheless be in a position to retaliate by means of airplanes ceaselessly cruising with nuclear bombs at points remote from our mainland and by means of a fleet of atomic submarines hangared under the polar ice cap and ready on call to swarm into ice free ports to discharge their lethal loads against the attacker and to destroy a hundred million in an act of massive retaliation. Recall, one hundred million Americans would have been already dead and no atomic energy can effect a resurrection. In sheer retaliation we would destroy an equal number of the enemy. "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," and as for Jesus let it be recognized that His kingdom was not of this world.

What then? This subject invites discussion for which this occasion does not allow. Suffice it to say for the moment that I think it were better to succumb than to survive by renouncing honor, mercy and compassion. But I am not convinced that we are reduced to this extremity. Perhaps if we practice honor we may yet survive. If we seek peace and leave no overture toward peace unexplored, if we never yield to the opponent the initiative for peace, if we show ourselves genuinely ready to renounce a national advantage for the sake of the peace of the world, if we use our resources by way of foreign aid not to buy friends but to aid those who need aid, if we grant recognition to governments because they exist and stop granting approval to governments because they provide us with air bases, if we open the doors to free travel and free trade, perchance we may melt even an iron curtain and achieve that level of understanding which befits men created in the image of God.

We have a revolution in technology and now inflated with "hybris" we pronounce obsolete the wisdom of the ages. Yes, we are told, but to do anything else is to run the risk of slavery or extinction. The risk yes, but if we are not willing to engage this risk we shall not be worthy to survive.

Butler Predicts Democratic Sweep

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler forecasts a Democratic sweep of Senate and Congressional races in the November general election.

In an address Sunday to the closing session of a national committee meeting and congressional campaign conference of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, Butler said White House leadership is "void and vacuum."

Butler said that in 1958 and 1960 youth would veer to the Democrats because of a series of disappointments from the Republicans.

Fairfield Lions League

The Fairfield Lions Little League will inaugurate its third season tonight at 6:15 with a pair of games. Fairfield and Cashtown will be the scenes of the opening games.

At Fairfield, E. H. Newman, past president of the Lions Club, will throw out the first ball. In that game the Fairfield Amvets will be host to Mummaburg. A pair of southpaws are scheduled to go on the mound. Charles Sites has been chosen to do the honors for the Amvets while Ralph Riley will go for Mummaburg.

Clark E. Spence, president and director of the Lions Little League, will throw out the first ball at Cashtown, where Cashtown will be host to Orrtanna. The probable pitchers will be Terry Ramer for Orrtanna and Gene Runk for Cashtown.

DALLAS (AP) — When Roberto de Vicenzo failed to finish in the money in the $25,000 Dallas Open Sunday it brought to an end the longest winning streak in golf, time considered.

De Vicenzo had finished in the money in 31 straight tournaments over a period of four years, starting July 4, 1954.

He shot 287 in the Dallas Open and that was two strokes out of the money.

Beggars Say Fat Ladies More Sentimental; More Generous

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That professional street beggars say fat ladies give more generously than slender ones because they are more sentimental.

That half the world's population doesn't wear shoes and half has virtually no foot ailments.

That the Eskimos go in for the most advanced type of housing—waterproof igloos made of plastic foam.

Like Newspaper Ads

That a survey of young housewives found that 92 per cent wanted ads in their newspapers, but 62 per cent would prefer TV without commercials.

That malaria, one of earth's greatest disease scourges, is rapidly being wiped out in the United States. Not a single case of localized acquired malaria has been reported here in the last three years. A decade ago 40,000 new cases were reported annually.

That one of the best ways to cut down evaporation from your storage tank is to paint it a light color—that is, if it is exposed to the sun.

Sorry She Was Queen

That Catherine the Great of Russia regretted all her life she hadn't been born a man. On royal hunts she insisted on wearing men's clothing.

That Tchaikovsky, the Russian composer, was so terrified by electrical storms he would hide from them like a child. While conducting he always supported his chin in his left hand because of a morbid fear his head would literally fall off his shoulders into the orchestra pit.

That many drug stores, in addition to aspirin and insect lotions, also will sell you a short-term life insurance policy to cover you during your vacation.

$15,000 A Minute

That national defense costs the United States about $15,000 a minute.

That a poll showed 62 per cent of American men believe men are more moderate in their habits than women. Only 45 per cent of the women agreed!

That some humming birds weigh less than a penny.
